Lynn, please keep in mind that the March 2013 report would only address broilers and lagoons/basins for swine and dairy. I don't expect us to have finalized all of the animal species until [redacted] based on how things are progressing right now and that is very dependent on funding availability. We have not made any of the revised "projected" dates public at this point. We've only started trying to map that out for Senior Leadership in the agency. We had a meeting with Perciasepe recently stepping him thru an OAR Program Update and CAFOs of course was one of the topics of discussion. We provided him a status update and shared concerns with SAB review. We also gave him a projected completion date along with the caveats. All of this is highly dependent on the outcome of the SAB review and by that I mean the complete SAB review of all animal sectors.

Lynn:
Due to time limitations the following reflects only my thoughts and not OAQPS' management's input.

1. Should we revisit "options selection? While there may be work on the CERCLA/EPCRA rule going on "behind the scenes" during 2012, I'm not sure the option selected in 2011 is still valid considering the fact that EEM development for ALL of the animal sectors that participated in the Consent Agreement and associated study will not be ready any time soon.

2. If the EEMs are not ready by [redacted], what do you envision sending to OPEI and OMB?

I read the attachment and don't have any major comments on it.

Thanks!

I've updated the one-pager for Richard's short turnaround request. He needs by COB today. So if you can give a quick review, I'd appreciate it. I plan to send to Richard just before I leave at 4pm.

Larry, if you see any "show stoppers" let me know. I'm not sure if this is for public consumption or not.

I also plan to send him this as a revised schedule: The schedule is delayed due to the NAEMS emissions estimating methodology development and their review by SAB. SAB will be discussing their draft panel report in March 2013.
