Hello everyone,

Just a reminder about this important National Program Guidance early engagement tribal call with Regional Administrator Alexandra Dunn TODAY from 2-3:30. We look forward to hearing from you!

Dear Tribal Environmental Directors and Staff,

As mentioned during the August RTOC call, EPA is planning on initiating early engagement discussions with Tribes to gain early input into the FY20-21 National Program Guidance. While previous NPM early engagement discussions were facilitated by the National Program offices, this year, each Region Administrator will host this early engagement discussion with the Tribes in the respective region. Therefore, Regional Administrator Alexandra Dunn will host this conference call, while I facilitate the discussion and Sean Dixon, Senior Advisor to the Administrator, will take copious notes of your input and suggestions.

The meeting objectives will include input and discussions on how EPA and Tribes will work together to advance the FY2018-2022 EPA Strategic Plan, as well as National Environmental Performance Partnership System (NEPPS) flexibilities needed to advance tribal environmental and health priorities.

The intended outcomes will include an understanding of: your Tribal priorities; strategies to carry out the priorities, and financial, administrative and/or programmatic flexibilities needed to carry out the strategies identified in the Strategic Plan.

Attached is the agenda for this early engagement conference call, as well as the FY2018-2022 EPA Strategic Plan and Transformation Strategy. A link to the previous FY18-19 National Program Guidances is included at the bottom of your agenda and can be found at https://www.epa.gov/planandbudget/national-program-guidances for reference.

Please feel free to extend this invitation to others as appropriate and let me know if you have any questions related to this important early engagement discussion.

Thank you,

Mike
