As part of its commitment to continuing legal education efforts, the American Bar Association (ABA) occasionally records its programs and makes those audio and video recordings, related Program materials, and/or edited transcripts thereof, available to its members and other professionals interested in the topics being covered. Presenter agrees to participate in the Program described above and grants the following rights:

1. Presenter acknowledges the presentation and/or written materials have been authored by United States Government employees acting within their official capacity. Works (articles, reports, speeches, software, etc.) created by United States Government employees are not subject to copyright in the United States pursuant to 17 U.S.C. § 105 and no permission is required to assign or license such Works. The Department consents to the use and/or reproduction and distribution of such Works within the United States and grants to the ABA a royalty-free, nonexclusive, perpetual license to reproduce and disseminate the Program in all media outside the United States. Presenter agrees that s/he will not assert any rights, title or interest (including claims of copyright) in the Program and/or the material. The ABA shall be responsible for obtaining all other required authorizations, consents and releases, if applicable. However, the ABA is not obligated to publish Presenter's presentation or other materials.

2. Presenter acknowledges that the ABA has the right to use Presenter's name, persona, photograph, biography, voice, likeness, speaker presentation and/or written materials in connection with the Program in perpetuity in any and all media or form of communication throughout the universe whether now existing or hereafter developed. The ABA, its successors, licensees or assigns may make modifications, such as to edit or duplicate the material, as they determine; however, the message conveyed in the remarks will not be altered. The ABA may not give special emphasis to the Presenter or the Presenter's name, title, position, likeness, voice, remarks or biographical information in connection with advertising, publicity, endorsement, fundraising and/or promotional purposes; except the ABA may list Presenter's name and United States government affiliation among a complete list of participants in the Program, giving Presenter no greater prominence than the names and affiliations of the other participants.

In its print materials and on its webpage, the ABA may utilize Presenter's appearance, as well as any accompanying written or visual information, to inform about the Program.

3. Presenter represents that the presentation and/or written materials are original to Presenter and Presenter's staff and to the best of the Presenter's knowledge do not infringe upon any copyright, proprietary right, or any other right whatsoever of any party and that Presenter has made no agreements inconsistent with this Government Speaker Release ("Release"). Presenter further represents that to the best of the Presenter's knowledge the presentation and/or written materials contains no matter that is scandalous, obscene, or defamatory or otherwise contrary to law.

4. Presenter hereby acknowledges and agrees that the ABA has the right to use, transcribe, publish, reproduce, distribute, display and sell any audio, written or visual materials submitted in connection with the oral presentation, and to make the presentation, and/or written materials available in physical and electronic form, including mounting a copy of the presentation and/or written materials on media servers where the presentation and/or written materials may be copied, downloaded and/or printed by persons accessing the servers, and acknowledges the presentation and/or written materials may be used and distributed without seeking further Presenter approval.

5. Presenter acknowledges and agrees to comply with the ABA's "Open Meeting Policy," which states in part "all ABA programs are open to the media and on the record unless they are being held in executive session to conduct confidential business." "Media" may include print, radio, television, internet or other journalists as credentialed by the Division for Media Relations and Communication Services, including ABA journalists. In addition, Presenter acknowledges that media may record, photograph, or make fair use of portions of the presentation.

6. In agreement for use of the Presentation, the ABA agrees to make a good faith effort to use the Presentation in a way that does not cause damage, harm or embarrassment to the Presenter or the Department.

7. The terms and conditions of this Release constitute the full and complete understanding between the parties. No other verbal or written agreement shall vary or alter any provision of this Release unless both parties consent to modify this Release in a signed writing. This Release is not transferable or assignable.
