Re: Request for Hearing Re Inappropriate Threat of Use of EPA Authority Against the State of California

Dear Mr. Chairman and Ranking Member:

We write as former employees of the Environmental Protection Agency to respectfully request that your Committee investigate whether EPA Administrator Wheeler's recent actions in California were intended as retaliation for the state's failure to support President Trump's political agenda.

EPA's credibility depends on its commitment to use its authority to protect public health and our environment in an objective, even-handed manner, rather than as a blunt instrument of political power. While that principle has served the public well under both Republican and Democratic Presidents, it is in serious trouble today.

On September 24, Mr. Wheeler wrote a letter to the California Air Resources Board threatening to withhold highway funds based on California's failure to meet air quality standards. The decision was made just after EPA announced it would block California limits on greenhouse gas emissions from motor vehicles that would result in greater fuel economy while simultaneously reducing the air pollution now of such concern to the Trump Administration. EPA's political appointees have worked overtime for the past two years to delay or water down standards that limit emissions from power plants, the oil, gas and chemical industries, and other major sources. We hope that your investigation will weigh the effect that all of these federal rollbacks in emission standards will have when evaluating Mr. Wheeler's sudden interest in air quality in the state of California.

On September 26, Mr. Wheeler wrote an even more remarkable letter to California's Governor demanding that the state take "remedial action" to stop the homeless from polluting waterways. The letter followed President Trump's declaration that the homeless were responsible for "tremendous" amounts of ocean pollution. While California cities are struggling to find affordable housing for people living on the street, no evidence supports targeting the homeless for Clean Water Act enforcement, given the much greater damage done by the huge volume of waste discharged from industrial plants, factory farms, sewage treatment plants, and many other sources.

Mr. Wheeler's actions cannot be treated as legitimate uses of EPA's authority taken for the purpose of advancing environmental protection, especially considering the current Administration's record. EPA has not shown much enthusiasm for enforcing environmental laws since President Trump took office, particularly when violations come from big polluters with political connections. The agency instead has proposed to shrink the number of wetlands and streams protected by the Clean Water Act, allow groundwater contaminated by leaking dumps to leach into surface waters, and relax toxic discharge limits for coal-fired power plants that are the largest industrial source of such pollutants. Considering its enthusiasm for de-regulation and reluctance to enforce the laws still on the books, President Trump's threat to wield EPA's authority against the homeless, the most vulnerable members of our society, is shameless and morally repugnant.

The September 26 letter also calls out California's failure to take enforcement action against cities that fail to comply with the Clean Water and Safe Drinking Water Acts. We welcome Mr. Wheeler's sudden interest in environmental compliance after the drastic decline in EPA enforcement since the 2016 election. But his decision to single out California while taking no action in other states where there are at least as many serious violations is transparently partisan.

EPA's authority should be used to protect human health and the environment and never to retaliate against perceived political foes. We urge your Committee to determine whether Mr. Wheeler's letters of September 24 and 26 threatening to withhold grant funds and increase EPA oversight were motivated by improper partisan concerns.

Thank you for considering our views, and we look forward to your reply.
