Leslye will know best. Possible Joe or Bob. This is a sensitive topic and I would recommend we just point them to info on websites or in print.

I'm at the very basic research stage and I'm looking for information on how the EPA in Kansas monitors those emissions here in the state and enforces compliance on new equipment. Is there a division that handles that? A single person?

How do you work with gas companies to help them voluntarily make changes that would reduce methane leaks?

What programs exist?

That kind of thing.

Thanks,
