U.S. Congressman Mike Waltz (FL-06):

This Administration has done more for clean water in Florida than any other in modern history. Water quality has improved in the Everglades, across Florida's National Estuary Program network, and Harmful Algal Blooms are being targeted in Florida's springs and salt water ecosystems. Florida will do a better job at efficiently and effectively issuing permits for necessary infrastructure than the federal government has. State assumption of the permitting program will reduce project costs and save taxpayer dollars. As a next step, I'm looking forward to working with EPA on modernizing the Clean Water State Revolving Fund allocation which disadvantages states like Florida that have growing water infrastructure needs.
