Here's the updated version.
Success story:
Oklahoma NESHAPs: On November 2, 2017, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Region 6 initiated consultation with Tribal Nations regarding a proposed EPA action on an Oklahoma Department of Environmental Quality (ODEQ) request to update its delegation of the National Emission Standards for Hazardous Air Pollutants (NESHAP) to include areas of non-reservation Indian country. Tribal consultation was conducted in accordance with the EPA Policy on Consultation and Coordination with Indian Tribes. Between October 31, 2017 and August 7, 2018, EPA Region 6 met with several tribes in person and through calls, to inform tribes of the requested jurisdictional authority and to hear tribal concerns. We understand that in addition to conversations with EPA, several Tribes met with representatives from the State concerning the delegation request. Following several discussions with tribes and EPA, on June 25, 2018, ODEQ amended its request acknowledging that it did not currently know of any sources within non-reservation areas and that it was not now seeking to request delegation over areas of Indian country. With this new request, EPA published a proposed approval of ODEQ's revised request to update delegation of the NESHAP excluding all areas of Indian country as defined in 18 U.S.C. § 1151. See 83 FR 39641 (August 10, 2018). The comment and tribal consultation period closed on September 10, 2018. The EPA received five non-relevant comments during the public comment period on the proposal. None of those comments related directly to the merits of the delegation to ODEQ. In addition to closing out the consultation, EPA simultaneously took final action on the delegation which was published in the Federal Register on October 22, 2018. Jeff Robinson, 214-665-6435.
