Great thanks. Are there any resources that EPA could provide, based upon where we are with this incident today, that you have not been asked to provide? Essentially, is there more we could/should do with the understanding that you're currently examining additional programs and authorities?

Thanks again for the short turn around.

Here's an initial response. We're still examining more fully our authorities and programs.

Lisa/Mathy,

Hope all is well. Sen Manchin just spoke with Denis and has a flurry of questions that we're trying to track down. Pertaining to EPA, we are trying to get a brief synopsis of what EPA has done, has not done (perhaps due to the authority resting with the State, etc) and what potentially could EPA do to help (even though the ask has not been made). We are also trying to see what EPAs involvement, if any, has been since the identification of this new chemical. I understand that CDC/ATSDR has been engaged and that they work closely with EPA and that much of the authority in WV rests with the state and not EPA, but we want to be able to send back an accurate picture.

We're collecting information from the CDC and FEMA and will consolidate a report back to Denis.

We have a short fuse on this and need to get information back to him today.

Thanks in advance.
