Subject: NAHB letters to Administrator Pruitt
Attachments: The Honorable Scott Pruitt 4.5.17.pdf; The President 3.31.17.pdf

Michelle –

I am seeking your assistance transmitting these two letters to Administrator Pruitt. The first letter thanks the Administrator for last week's meeting. The second letter is a copy of a letter that has been transmitted to the President praising him for his leadership in signing the Executive Order on "Waters of the United States" rule. Could you please make sure copies of these two letters are shared with the Administrator and members of his senior staff that attended last week's meeting.

Within NAHB's thank you letter to Administrator Pruitt, NAHB's 2017 Chairman of the Board, Mr. Granger MacDonald reiterates our request for the Administrator to address NAHB's Board of Directors during our Midyear meetings in Washington D.C., June 13-17 at the Marriot Wardman Park Hotel.

The Administrator did mentioned during last week's meeting, he has some foreign travel plans for some time in June. However, prior conversations with his staff indicated the Administrator might be available on the afternoon of Thursday, June 15 (e.g., between noon and 2:30 p.m.). Can you please confirm whether or not the afternoon of Thursday, June 15th is still a possibility? NAHB staff will of course will remain flexible to the Administrator's schedule for that week.

Thanks again for all your help with last week's meeting. Our senior leadership couldn't have been more pleased with the reception they received from Administrator Pruitt and his senior staff.

Granger MacDonald
2017 NAHB Chairman of the Board

April 5, 2017

The Honorable Scott Pruitt
Administrator
U.S. Environmental Protection Agency
1200 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20460

Dear Administrator Pruitt:

On behalf of the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB), I would like to thank you and your staff for meeting with NAHB's senior leadership on March 29. The nation's home builders and developers appreciate that we share similar philosophies and goals: to establish sound environmental policies that protect our water, air, and land while simultaneously respecting the rights of states to manage their resources and avoiding undue economic burdens for small businesses. NAHB is committed to working with you during this critical time for our nation's economy, particularly as it relates to the uneven recovery for the U.S. home building industry.

We look forward to your leadership as EPA responds to the President's call for regulatory reform and takes steps to reduce the regulatory burdens that are needlessly raising housing costs for hard-working families without adding benefit to the environment. These regulatory concerns include those associated with the Clean Water Act's "waters of the U.S." (WOTUS) rule, lead-based paint requirements, stormwater permitting, and emissions reduction initiatives, among others.

With respect to WOTUS and in response to your request, NAHB sent a letter (attached) to President Trump thanking him for his executive order which calls upon EPA and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to review the Obama administration's flawed WOTUS rule and restore the rule of law. This is an important first step toward establishing a more sensible rule. Under your leadership, EPA and the Corps have already signaled their intent to fix WOTUS, and we want to commend you for moving quickly.

As we mentioned in our meeting last week, NAHB's senior leadership would like you to address our Board of Directors at the 2017 NAHB Midyear Meeting taking place June 13 – 17, 2017 at the Marriott Wardman Park Hotel in Washington, D.C.

Communications with your staff indicate you may be available to join us on Thursday, June 15, between noon and 2:30 p.m. We are, of course, flexible and will accommodate your schedule.

In the meantime, please let us know if we can do anything to assist you in your efforts to implement the President's regulatory streamlining initiatives.

Best regards,

Granger MacDonald

The President
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave., N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

On behalf of the more than 140,000 members of the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB), I want to thank you for keeping your campaign promise and signing the recent executive order directing the Environmental Protection Agency and U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to begin the process of rescinding or revising the controversial "waters of the United States" (WOTUS) rule.

I was truly honored to be at the White House on Feb. 28 for the signing ceremony. It was also a privilege to personally convey to you the gratitude of the nation's home builders for your strong leadership and decisive actions to roll back excessive regulations that are harming small businesses and stifling job and economic growth.

I am pleased to report that we recently had the opportunity to meet with EPA Administrator Scott Pruitt to discuss WOTUS and other issues of concern to the housing community. NAHB was one of the first groups to come out in support of your choice of Administrator Pruitt to head the EPA, and we look forward to building on the positive relationship.

NAHB would like to remain actively engaged, and work with you and your administration to implement a major infrastructure plan and comprehensive tax reform that will enable builders to construct more homes, lower effective rates for small businesses, and unleash the potential our economy has to move us into a bold and exciting future.

NAHB stands ready to do its part to support pro-business, pro-housing policies that will make America great again.

Best regards,

Granger MacDonald

Ms. Hale - I understand from speaking with Amy Dewey that you are handling meeting requests between Administrator Pruitt and outside groups.

Attached is a letter from the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) to Administrator Pruitt that was sent immediately following his confirmation vote by the United States Senate. NAHB's letter closes with a meeting request to the Administrator.

Yesterday, a member of NAHB's elected leadership, Mr. Granger MacDonald a developer and builder from Texas was able to join Administrator Pruitt at The White House signing event for the Executive Order withdrawing the stayed "Clean Water Rule." I was hoping Administrator Pruitt might be available to address NAHB's leadership during our June Association meetings here in Washington D.C. during the week of June 12th-17th.

The two potential dates and times when Administrator Pruitt could address NAHB's leadership include:

- Tuesday, June 13th at NAHB's offices (1201 15th Street N.W. Washington, D.C.) during NAHB's Executive Committee meetings (1pm and 4pm) before approximately 250 members, or

- Saturday, June 17th at the Marriot Wardman Park Hotel between 1pm and 5pm before NAHB's Board of Directors approximately 1,000 people.

While NAHB is clearly interested in the process EPA and Corps will follow revisiting the "Clean Water Rule," our industry also has number of other EPA regulatory and policy issues confronting the U.S. homebuilding industry that I know NAHB's leadership would appreciate discussing with Administrator Pruitt, and his leadership team, once they are in place.

Please feel free to contact me with any follow-up questions you might have.

Sydney and Michelle,

I am reaching out to call your attention to a request (attached) from the Colorado Association of Home Builders for Administrator Pruitt to speak to a group of home builders and general contractors in October. The event will take place on the morning of October 6 in Colorado Springs, CO. NAHB will be participating in the event, as well, and I want to add our name to request. Our builders recognize the impact Administrator Pruitt is having on the regulatory burdens facing the industry and they would very much like to hear his vison for the future. NAHB is enjoying an excellent relationship with the Administrator and I hope you will seriously consider attending the Colorado event.

If I can answer any questions, please do not hesitate to ask.

Hello Ryan, Michelle and Millan,

As Ross mentions, we are grateful that General Pruitt can address the NAM Board at our meeting at the Phoenician in Scottsdale, AZ. Please note that the NAM Board meeting will convene on Monday, March 6 at 12:00 noon and adjourn on Tuesday, March 7 at 1:30 pm. While we have a working agenda and several speakers confirmed, please let me know what might work for you and we can try our best to accommodate. Many thanks, Jeannine

Ryan, thanks so much. We're excited to have General Pruitt speak at the board meeting.

I've copied Jeannine Tini Pierce, Vice President of Board Initiatives for NAM; she runs the board meeting and can answer all of your questions.

Ross, General Pruitt would like to RSVP for the board meeting. Thanks for the invitation.

I've attached Michelle and Millan on this email as they keep the General's schedule.

Could we, of course, get a little more information and the itinerary so we can start building out his trip?

Thanks.

Michelle, hope the world is finding you and your family and friends in good graces. We are all very proud of you and what you and Mr. Pruitt are doing for our America.

As we discussed earlier, I am a board of Directors member of NGEAO(Natural Gas and Energy Association of Oklahoma). We have approx. 450 members over 7 states, representing oil, gas, electric, gas processing, and energy markets. Our annual one and one half day annual conference is held each year at Hard Rock Hotel in Tulsa with 350-375 members attending each year.

We would like to respectfully request Mr. Scott Pruitt honor our group and industry as the Keynote Speaker Wednesday September 13, 2017 at lunch to kick off our annual conference. 30-45 minutes beginning at approximately 12:15 to 12:30PM.

There are gas and oil industry economic and analysis speakers the rest of the afternoon, followed by a reception Wednesday evening. Thursday is a golf tournament and/or bowling tournament. Followed by a banquet and awards dinner Thursday evening. Scott, and/or you and your party are welcome to join us and participate if you wish for any or all activities. All major companies are represented, including Continental Resources, Targa ,Linn, Chesapeake, etc.. We meet monthly with program speakers alternating between OKC and Tulsa venues.

We look forward to your consideration, and response regarding the feasibility of Mr. Pruitt honoring us with his presentation. Please advise of any additional information we could provide to assist you.

EPA's Pruitt basks in Trump glow after Paris pullout

By Alex Guillén

06/02/2017 06:45 PM EDT

Scott Pruitt's victory in vanquishing the Paris climate agreement has given him a status few of his predecessors enjoyed — an EPA chief who is clearly his administration's public face in driving environmental policy.

Pruitt's move into the spotlight comes after weeks of White House infighting over whether to reject the global climate pact, and shows that though the the former Oklahoma attorney general isn't a member of Trump's inner circle, he's got the president's ear on energy and environmental issues.

Typically, the head of the Environmental Protection Agency toils away crafting air and water regulations and defending the administration's policies in Congress, while more prominent officials lead the charge on the grand policy vision. Those more high-profile roles went to people like John Kerry, who served as a kind of global climate ambassador when he was Barack Obama's secretary of State, or former Vice Presidents Dick Cheney and Al Gore.

But when President Donald Trump announced the U.S. withdrawal from the Paris agreement Thursday, Pruitt was the one joining him at the podium in the Rose Garden — while Secretary of State Rex Tillerson, who'd wanted to stick with the deal, was nowhere to be seen. Pruitt repeated his victory lap at Friday's White House press briefing, beaming as he jousted with reporters over whether he or Trump believes that climate change is real.

Pruitt's prominence is a byproduct of how Trump views the Paris deal, former Obama climate negotiator Jonathan Pershing said Friday — through the lens of the U.S. economy, not as a worldwide fight against a common threat.

"It was a domestic agenda and not an international agenda that was dictating the policy" this week, Pershing said. "That's consistent with the way [Trump] characterized it as protecting American jobs. It was not characterized in the terms of American security being at risk because of climate change."

At Friday's press briefing, Pruitt praised Trump once again for the Paris decision, saying he had the courage to withdraw from a pact that would have benefited other countries as the expense of the U.S. economy.

"We owe no apologies to other nations for our environmental stewardship," said Pruitt, who had celebrated his win Thursday night with a dinner with staffers at the French-themed D.C. bistro Le Diplomate.

Tillerson, meanwhile, declined to endorse Trump's move at a separate press appearance Friday, calling it "a policy decision."

Despite months of behind-the-scenes debating over Paris that pitted Pruitt and Trump adviser Steve Bannon against Tillerson, Ivanka Trump and top economic adviser Gary Cohn, Pruitt sought to downplay his own influence over the president, saying he won on the merits.

In an appearance on Fox News Thursday evening, Pruitt dismissed the idea there had been an epic struggle as "simply legend."

"What happened in this process is what happens with every decision the president makes," Pruitt said. "He had advisers around him informing, equipping, helping him make a decision. The debate was good and strong and meaningful amongst all voices and the president made an informed decision."

But Pruitt has emerged as a power player inside the administration who appears to have the confidence of the president.

"It's all eyes on Pruitt because there's a lot of big issues regarding how the Trump administration addresses climate change," said Nick Loris, an economist at the conservative Heritage Foundation.

Pruitt's prominence is at least partly due to the fact that climate change isn't a top issue in the administration.

"There's just fewer cooks in the kitchen because addressing climate change is clearly not a priority for Trump," Loris said. And given how he fought against the Obama climate agenda while serving as Oklahoma's attorney general, "I'm not surprised he's spreading his wings to the international stage," he added.

Pruitt has already proven himself a successful operator in carrying out Trump's deregulation agenda.

He has had significant early success is pausing several key Obama-era regulations that were still in court, including a sweeping carbon regulation for power plants, ozone pollution limits and the Waters of the U.S. rule that defines which wetlands, streams and rivers fall under federal rules. The repeal process for those rules could take years, but Pruitt is well positioned to succeed in the task.

And in the meantime, Pruitt has canceled an EPA information request that would have set the stage for methane pollution limits for oil and gas wells, re-opened emissions standards for future vehicles and taken steps to modify other Obama-era regulations.

With his Paris win, Pruitt is positioning himself as the administration's leading voice on the international issues surrounding climate change.

On Fox News, Pruitt downplayed the potential diplomatic harm of the Paris decision, noting that the U.S. pulled out of the Kyoto Protocol in 2001 but weathered criticisms over that as well.

"If you go back and read, in March and April of 2001, the criticisms that was being led against President Bush, you can read the comments from the German chancellor, they're almost identical to the ones today."

However, Bush administration officials at the time found themselves surprised by other nations' strong reactions.

Then-Secretary of State Colin Powell said in 2002 that the "blowback" from Europe "was a sobering experience that everything the American president does has international repercussions." And Condoleezza Rice, at the time George W. Bush's national security adviser, wrote in a 2011 memoir that the Kyoto withdrawal was "a self-inflicted wound that could have been avoided."

Pruitt may soon find out just how angry his international counterparts are.

He will head to Italy on June 11 and 12 for an environmental ministerial meeting connected to the G-7 summit Trump recently attended. Italy, along with Germany and France, said in a statement Thursday that there is no re-negotiating the Paris agreement, despite what Trump promised Thursday.

I believe there will be a security detail assigned to him as well as and Advance staff. Unfortunately I don't know who will be assigned as if now. EPA will be paying for the staff accommodations but if possible could you hold 2 rooms for the team members?

Hi Jeannine -- I'm so sorry, I don't have answers here yet. I am copying the Administrator's Executive Assistant, Michelle Hale, as she is also working on getting a firm answer for you on this. It is a priority for us, we are just trying to iron out a few wrinkles in our system. Thank you for being so patient with us.

Pruitt Corrects Course on Obama-Era Water Regulation

National Review
The Editors
June 28, 2017
http://www.nationalreview.com/article/449059/scott-pruitt-water-regulation-rollback-epa-restoration-rule-law

Scott Pruitt is not so much shaking things up at the EPA as restoring order, as with his decision to rescind the "Waters of the United States" rule — WOTUS, inevitably — which purported to expand the application of the Clean Water Act (CWA) and empower the federal government to regulate essentially any standing body of water and the lands adjacent to it. If you are wondering how bonkers the EPA was willing to be in its interpretation, consider that WOTUS would have applied to wet grass, if the grass had been wet enough.

WOTUS's enforcement already had been suspended by the federal courts, and it will not be missed.

WOTUS had very little to do with clean water. In the words of Zippy Duvall, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, "It was a federal land grab designed to put a straitjacket on farming and private businesses across this nation. That's why our federal courts blocked it from going into effect for the past two years."

WOTUS is a textbook example of federal mission creep. For years, "waters of the United States" were defined as navigable interstate and coastal waterways, that "are presently used, or have been used in the past, or may be susceptible for use to transport interstate or foreign commerce."

Under the Obama administration, the EPA expanded the definition of waters under its regulatory jurisdiction to include any body of water that might possibly be used in interstate commerce: For example, a cow pond used to water livestock producing meat that might eventually be sold across state lines became, under the new rules, "jurisdictional," as though it were the Erie Canal or the Everglades. The Army Corps of Engineers language communicates the absurdity of this, describing federal jurisdiction over "mudflats, sandflats, wetlands, sloughs, prairie potholes, wet meadows, playa lakes, or natural ponds," in addition to the familiar navigable waterways.

Wet meadows.

In addition to eliminating WOTUS, the EPA will be reconsidering its definition of which waters are subject to regulation under the CWA, as it should. The EPA is a problem, one resulting from the interaction of two lamentable tendencies in contemporary American government. The first is the elevation of narrowly ideological environmentalism over ordinary quality-of-life concerns such as reducing air pollution and ensuring clean water for drinking and recreational purposes.

For about 25 years, radical environmentalists and responsible environmentalists competed for influence in the major advocacy organizations and, inevitably, in government. The radicals won, and the environmental movement today is not preoccupied with smog or waste-dumping in rivers but instead is engaged in a jihad against capitalism and modern standards of living. There is no oil pipeline that it will not attempt to sabotage, no coal-export depot that it will not attempt to paralyze through litigation, no new recreational use of wilderness areas that it will not attempt to suffocate.

That much should have become obvious during the fight over the Keystone XL pipeline: No environmental easement or precautionary measure was ever going to be enough to satisfy Keystone's opponents, because they oppose oil pipelines per se. That ideology is dominant within the EPA as well, which is why giving the agency an open-ended mandate to regulate irrigation ditches in Nebraska, far from any legitimately interstate or international concern, is a mistake.

The second part of the EPA problem is the out-of-control substitution of agency regulation for statutes passed by Congress. As with health-care policy and much else that is defective in our public policy, environmental laws such as the Clean Air Act and the Clean Water Act have been effectively converted into a series of enabling acts, "the secretary shall" and "the secretary may," creating an enormous body of onerous and sometimes contradictory administrative law enacting federal policies far removed from the substance of the laws actually passed by the democratically elected lawmakers accountable to the people. The federal bureaucrats enjoy their immunity to democratic accountability, and Congress, alas, enjoys shifting its accountability to the unaccountable.

EPA administrator Scott Pruitt has expressed his desire to restore something like the rule of law at the agency, reining in its more ambitious and expansive interpretations of the laws passed by Congress and — radical thought! — hewing instead to what the law actually says, providing what Pruitt describes as "regulatory certainty" to businesses and citizens.

The usual ninnies are shrieking in the expected hysterical fashion. But the fact is, no one is in favor of water or air pollution. At question is whether we ought to treat a wet meadow in Oklahoma the same way we treat Lake Tahoe when it comes to federal regulation, whether the mission of the EPA is, as advertised, environmental protection, or whether it is to be deputized to lead an ideological jihad against modern industrial capitalism. Also at question is whether our laws are going to be made by our elected lawmakers or by unelected administrators in Washington.

Pruitt has chosen wisely here, and has much more work to do in the same vein.
