Rick,

I figured with meetings it wasn't a good idea anyway. I provided you with a spreadsheet I need to step you through or someone else within the EPA. I am adding to it. I also discovered another disturbing thing today and took photos and grabbed a soil sample.

I recommend talking to me before digesting everything as I can guide you through it. I know our first conversation was lengthy, but I needed you to understand the gravity of the situation. I will not waste your time.

I also recommend not contacting anyone with DNREC until you understand the scope as there stands a good chance that state employees are involved. Especially after what I've been watching and what I just took pictures of.

I spoke to a woman around the corner who lives very close to that area who is having major medical issues. I'm not making this up. I purchased her a shower filter and will be purchasing a reverse osmosis machine for under her sink and medicine to treat what I think is wrong with her GI tract. Ex. 6 Personal Privacy (PP) whose name you'll see again, has an identical medical issue and doctors can't figure out what's wrong with him, either, but that medicine is helping him. I'm not exaggerating with any of this. This is a VERY big problem.

Hi Ex. 6 Personal Privacy (PP)

I apologize, but today is been a circus and I have not been able to get through the materials you sent to me. I have another fire to put out this evening. It will take a few days to digest what you sent along with assessing the class action law suite and DNREC's law suit and what Mountaire is being required to do under both of those actions. As I mentioned, I will touch base with Jennifer Roushey. My Section Chief for the drinking water enforcement work will be contacting someone she knows in DNREC's solid waste program to see what they know and what they have or can do.

You mentioned capturing notes and information, with links, in a spreadsheet. That may help us identify specific sites more easily. If you are OK with sharing that, I'd appreciate receiving it. If not, we'll go with what you sent.

I'll keep you posted on our progress.

Have a good weekend.

Rick

Rick,

Thank you for your time this afternoon. I feel much more comfortable knowing the Federal government is looking into this.

I would like my name to be kept confidential in all matters. If there is an investigation done I don't even want it to sound like it came from a complaint by a citizen because they will all know it was me. There is a small town aspect to this area and part of that is "people talk".

I simply do not have the time to redact the personally identifying information such as my name, email address, phone number, and community from these documents. If they are presented to anyone outside of the government, I would like them redacted. I would prefer the government agencies who work on this put them in their own format. That said, I can rework the documents as needed, but I wanted to get them to you as soon as possible.

I tracked this information down using Google Maps, Google Earth Pro (free software that shows historic satellite imagery), and the Sussex County property search tool. There is a mapping tool provided by the county for finding parcel IDs, but Landgrid.com is better.

Attached is my testimony to the judge during the fairness hearing and the exhibits I provided him. It covers the areas surrounding the class action suit. As you know, I have identified other areas of concern.

I also attached a letter I sent to the Office of Disciplinary Action. They never got back to me, so I have no idea what happened with that. I no longer care what happens to my attorney and do not wish to pursue that avenue, however there are details within that document that suggest other possible criminal behavior. I have since learned that one of my conclusions was incorrect in that the inability to sue Mountaire Farms forever was only regarding activities they did regarding this suit. I do, however, question the legality of not permitting anyone to sue Mountaire Farms simply because they happen to reside or own property within the settlement areas.

I also provided a copy of the NOV so you don't have to hunt it down.

I am sending a second email as well as the attachments are too big for one.
