Hi Everyone – We are getting down to the wire on remedy decision documents and want to ensure we have a unified approach for remedy decision documentation. Recent discussions with Peter reveal that the State may not need an agreement with EPA and that the State could issue a Consent Order to Aerojet Rocketdyne. I believe Aerojet Rocketdyne is ok with this as long as we have a commitment from EPA that they support this process and will review and approve decision documents. We understand that EPA will need to issue a Proposed Plan and ROD and that the desire is to have the CEQA and Proposed Plan public review and comment process be combined to meet requirements of both.
Thanks, Chris
