FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
February 11, 2021

Biden-Harris Administration Launches American Innovation Effort to Create Jobs and Tackle the Climate Crisis

White House Forms Climate Innovation Working Group, Outlines Innovation Agenda

Today, the Biden-Harris Administration is initiating an ambitious innovation effort to create American jobs while tackling the climate crisis, which includes the launch of a new research working group, an outline of the Administration's innovation agenda. The announcements kickstart the Administration's undertaking to spur the creation of new jobs, technology, and tools that empower the United States to innovate and lead the world in addressing the climate crisis.

President Biden is fulfilling his promise to accelerate R&D investments, creating a new Climate Innovation Working Group as part of the National Climate Task Force to advance his commitment to launching an Advanced Research Projects Agency-Climate (ARPA-C). The working group will help coordinate and strengthen federal government-wide efforts to foster affordable, game-changing technologies that can help America achieve the President's goal of net zero economy-wide emissions by 2050 and can protect the American people from the impacts of droughts and flooding, bigger wildfires, and stronger hurricanes. The working group will be co-chaired by the White House Office of Domestic Climate Policy, Office of Science of Technology and Policy, and Office of Management and Budget.

"We are tapping into the imagination, talent, and grit of America's innovators, scientists, and workers to spearhead a national effort that empowers the United States to lead the world in tackling the climate crisis," said Gina McCarthy, President Biden's National Climate Advisor. "At the same time, we are positioning America to create good-paying, union jobs in a just and equitable way in communities across the nation that will be at the forefront of new manufacturing for clean energy and new technology, tools, and infrastructure that will help us adapt to a changing climate."

As the opportunity for American leadership in climate innovation is vast, the Administration is outlining key planks of an agenda the Climate Innovation Working Group will help advance:

- zero net carbon buildings at zero net cost, including carbon-neutral construction materials;
- energy storage at one-tenth the cost of today's alternatives;
- advanced energy system management tools to plan for and operate a grid powered by zero carbon power plants;
- very low-cost zero carbon on-road vehicles and transit systems;
- new, sustainable fuels for aircraft and ships, as well as improvements in broader aircraft and ship efficiency and transportation management;
- affordable refrigeration, air conditioning, and heat pumps made without refrigerants that warm the planet;
- carbon-free heat and industrial processes that capture emissions for making steel, concrete, chemicals, and other important industrial products;
- carbon-free hydrogen at a lower cost than hydrogen made from polluting alternatives;
- innovative soil management, plant biologies, and agricultural techniques to remove carbon dioxide from the air and store it in the ground;

- direct air capture systems and retrofits to existing industrial and power plant exhausts to capture carbon dioxide and use it to make alternative products or permanently sequester it deep underground.

In addition to supporting technologies that are near commercialization, the Climate Innovation Working Group will also emphasize research to bolster and build critical clean energy supply chains in the United States and strengthen American manufacturing. As it coordinates climate innovation across the federal government, it will focus on programs at land-grant universities, Historically Black Colleges and Universities, and other minority-serving institutions.

"Today is an important day for tackling the climate crisis through cutting-edge science, technology, and innovation. The Office of Science and Technology Policy is ready to help turbocharge climate-related innovation, and we look forward to engaging with scientists, engineers, students, and innovators all across America to build a future in which not only jobs and economic benefits but also opportunities to participate in climate innovation are shared equitably by all Americans," said Kei Koizumi, Acting Director of the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy.

Subject: RE: National Climate Task Force - Deputies Meeting

All,

Thank you for your participation in Friday's deputies meeting. To follow up on our discussion, please note the following:

1. Engagement tracking- David Kieve [Ex. 6], the Director of Public Engagement at CEQ, will assist the Task Force in tracking engagement/announcement opportunities across the agencies. Please reach out to him with the appropriate engagement contact at your front offices and he will set up a process for a regular sync. Since cabinet affairs reports only track a short-range lookahead, David's process will help build more long-range visibility into work at the agencies that can be highlighted.

2. Leaders Summit – Melanie Nakagawa [Ex. 6] the Senior Director for Climate and Energy at the NSC, provided an update on the April Leaders Summit. Please reach out to her with any questions on the event program and agency involvement.

V/R,
Roque

Alison:

Just a quick reminder about this Climate Task Force deliverable due on Wednesday, in anticipation of the Task Force meeting on March 18th. Ex. 5 Deliberative Process (DP) for the first Task Force meeting and then again last week with the notice for the upcoming Task Force meeting.

We know there's a huge amount of stuff crossing your desk, but would appreciate your Ex. 5 Deliberative Process (DP) with a few highlights.
I wouldn't worry if this slips a day or two, but we do need this by the end of the week.

Happy to chat if it would be helpful.

Many thanks.

David

Thank you for participating in our first meeting of the National Climate Task Force on February 11. Ex. 5 Deliberative Process (DP)

Ex. 5 Deliberative Process (DP)

Please mark your calendars for the next meeting of the Task Force, which we will hold on March 18th at noon. We will look forward to welcoming newly-confirmed cabinet members at that meeting. Also, we will be joined by the newest agency member of the Task Force, NASA, an agency that sponsors important scientific research on climate-related issues.

Ex. 5 Deliberative Process (DP) Thank you for your engagement on these – we appreciate you sharing back responses with Roque Sanchez in our office by EOD on Wednesday, March 10. And thank you for your engagement and leadership more generally. We have already made significant progress in advancing the whole-of-government climate agenda, but, of course, there is lots still to do.

Thank you.

Hi Gina – Thanks. Regan mentioned just this morning again that he wants to connect soon. Ex. 6 Ex. 6 but I'll pass this along in the morning and we'll get it done soon.

Dan it would be great to fit in a call with the Administrator this week if he has time. Maggie can help schedule or he can call my on my cell any evening after 8 or after. Its Ex. 6

It's just a hello and catch up. I have no particular issue or concern to raise.

Thanks

Gina

Hey Dan,

Gina asked that we share the draft ECIWG report with Administrator Regan for his review and comment. Do you mind passing along the attached? Happy to brief the Administrator further on the work of the ECIWG, if helpful.

Thanks,
Jahi
