Subject: Say No to making Underground Toxic Dumps of California's aquifers at the Arroyo Grande oilfield operated by Freeport McMoRan.

Dear Sirs:

Unconscionable.

It is unconscionable that California would permit contamination of a drinking water aquifer.

Even if it now contains some contamination, future technologies may be applied to retrieve the water. However, the proposed permit will turn it into an UNDERGROUND TOXIC DUMP, with no guarantee that it cannot seep or weep into neighboring wells.

We need responsible petroleum development. This is irresponsible.

I urge the EPA to protect our drinking water.

Say no.

Sincerely,

Effie McDermott
