Hi Keara,

Leslie just called me about this request and based on our discussion, I am letting you know I will pick the option Andre gave me, to ignore his request.

Thanks, Michele

Subject: California permits

Hi Mr. Dermer,

I had a few questions pertaining to permitted injection wells in California.

After reviewing http://www.epa.gov/uic/underground-injection-control-permits-region-9. And seeing what permits were on the website, I was wondering where would I go to get the remaining information on permitted wells in California? I am not interested in Class II wells.

My focus is, where are ALL of the well permits for Class I, Class III, and Class V(if any are permitted in CA)?

Initially, when I was looking for information for Injection wells in CA I was provided with this information:

1) USEPA Region 9 regulates Class I, III, and V injection wells in California. The inventory of open injection wells in each class are:

Class I: 51

Class III: 136

Class V: 20718

However, The website only list 28 of the 51 Class I wells. 1 of the 136 Class III wells(0 in CA) and 5 of the 20,718 Class V wells.(I understand that many of these are not permitted, but is this the complete list that are permitted?) Where can I find the complete list or remaining permitted wells that are not listed on this website?

I am currently working with Leslie Greenberg (Greenberg.Leslie@epa.gov) from Region 9 and Keara Moore (Moore.Keara@epa.gov) of HQ in order to get these remaining questions answered. I am reaching out to you in hopes to expedite the answer as much as possible.

If you are able to assist, It would be greatly appreciated. If not, please ignore. Thank you.
