Hi Shayne,

Thanks for the additional background. I wonder if the tanks have potential contaminants in them? It seems the restoration funds we're using for the Dockton net pen piling removal would be a possible funding source.

I have been checking in with Lindie from time to time regarding removal of tanks but all contractors showing interest have decided to not tackle once realize in a cleanup site. I would love to see tanks removed but the contractors that may be willing to tackle are ones that concern me. If nothing else maybe EPA will have Cascade remove as part of final actions on site…
Ownership and legal issues will arise as we get closer to final remedy development so stay tuned as RI/FS moves through process. Don't hold breath though, after all this is an EPA site we are talking about.
