Hi, Everyone,

The article was accurate and in general, everyone was glad that we came. I know Air Division has a conference call with Rosemont and National Park Service to go over the air quality modeling on March 21st. The purpose of the call is to begin developing a modeling protocol that will accurately reflect the regional impacts of the project. I assume other meetings are being set up as well.

In other news, Rosemont got a 1-year extension of their $43 M loan repayment that was originally due April 22, 2012. The new date is April 14, 2013. The article (from the Sunday AZ Star) says that Rosemont has raised half the money needed to build the mine and they are hoping to start construction before the new 2013 date.
