Position Summary

This is a Senior Executive Service (SES) position located in the Office of Enforcement and Compliance Assurance. We are recruiting for the position of Director, Office of Civil Enforcement (OCE). This position is located in Washington, DC.

The Director, OCE, serves as an advisor to the Assistant Administrator, Principal Deputy Assistant Administrator and the Deputy Assistant Administrator for OECA on enforcement matters that present the highest risks to human health and the environment, and on legal strategies to address these problems. Every year, EPA's civil enforcement program stops the release of millions of tons of illegal pollution into the air, water and on the ground, ensures the cleanup of contamination problems, and prevents the causes of pollution from reoccurring. The Director, OCE, manages and provides program oversight for EPA's National Enforcement Initiatives. These address sectors that display nationwide patterns of significant noncompliance, where enforcement can yield the greatest environmental and compliance benefits. Cases bought under these priorities typically focus on violators or industries that operate in multiple states with serious, long-standing violations that place human health and the environment at risk.

OCE is an organization of 144 employees comprised of four divisions. The divisions develop, implement and direct the national statutory and regulatory enforcement programs, provide policy and guidance, and carry out enforcement actions.

The OCE divisions are the Air Enforcement Division (AED), Special Litigation and Projects Division (SLPD), Waste and Chemical Enforcement Division (WCED), and the Water Enforcement Division (WED).

OCE accomplishes its mission by targeting those violations that present the highest risks to human health and the environment, and taking legal action to address these problems. The result is either through settlement or an administrative or judicial order to achieve correction of violations and appropriate remedies for the environmental harm caused. By maintaining a vigorous enforcement program, the organization deters, eliminates financial incentives to noncompliance and promotes a level playing field among regulated entities.
