I found her about 2 months ago, and thought I would reach out to her to offer help, but wanted to see what she was doing first . . . I wasn't able to reach her, and didn't leave a message since I didn't want to come across wrong. It looks like she really is just putting out info on our sites, on per week, and why Superfund is important. I think she might be interested in our proposed listings, so will try and reach her again and test the waters. She doesn't seem to be very opinionated in these pieces, just presenting what is basically on our site summary pages. I thought I could offer to help with communicating with the CIC or the RPM for some sites since they site summary pages could be a little out of date. So far, though, I think they've been great, just not sure how much visibility they're getting. There haven't been many comments on any of the blog posts thus far.
