Thanks for the excellent explanation! It would be good for Jared to understand if other potential sources have also been identified that perhaps the reporter did not play up. Needs to be a short message though. I can always amplify at a future update. Thanks!

The reporter for the LA Times contacted Andrew Taylor on Friday afternoon, and Lisa Hanusiak on Monday. They forwarded the request to OPA, and Nahal set up a call with the reporter on Tuesday morning. The source investigation is being led by the RWQCB so we referred the reporter to them for further details. It was in the end of day on Tuesday.

This is separate from the reporter (television) who wanted to film the well drilling that we're doing in Burbank. The reporter who originally covered our work, and wanted to film the field work, has left the station.

I remember seeing something from Nahal for months about a reporter wanting to schedule a Glendale? site visit with Lisa, which I think recently happened. Not sure if it was LA Times nor whether that's how the Disney angle got highlighted. Seems like I saw something in passing about Disney and hex chrome very recently, but I'm not recalling any specifics. Please coordinate with OPA on a response to Jared and cc me.
