Thanks!

I agree with your comment about not sure how many will come forward – mainly because how in the world will they ever even know about it? I would assume they are not on EPA mailing lists.

Look forward to talking on Monday,
Faye

Faye

Here is some info on definitions of small business.

http://www.epa.gov/rfa/overview.html#small-business

And link to SBA definitions

https://www.sba.gov/content/small-business-size-standards

As I understand it, people are encouraged to apply, and state why one should be considered, and EPA reviews the information and makes a determination. In this case, not sure how many people will come forward.

Faye

My day is evaporating on another project. Can we please talk on Monday. I will send you a definition of a small business under the RFA and send Mike a note of apology that I forgot to tell him about the small business panel. Thanks. Doug

Hey Faye

Can we talk sometime about the statements in today's article in Chem Watch on workplan chemicals? Just so you know, I had an extensive conversation with Mike Cooley with WM Barr last Friday (March 27) about many things, including this proposed alternatives study. Remember that CA DTSC never heard anything about this study that was mentioned in the meeting with Wendy from last November. We follow up with them then. I told Mike that we are potentially interested, but would need to discuss details, run it up the chain here, invite all interested manufacturers, and determine how to make this a public process (if appropriate). Glad to talk anytime. Just let me know when a good time for you might be.

Hope you are having a nice spring break week.

Thanks, doug
