On May 9, 2016, a helicopter application of Gavel 75DF, Kocide 3000, and Microthiol Disperss to a tomato site located across the street from a residence. The resident contacted the Kern County Agricultural Commissioner's Office to report that he and his family had various symptoms which he believed were caused by the application of the pesticides across the street from his residence. The symptoms reported by the family included upset stomach, vomiting, headache, and a chemical taste in their mouths. Analysis of the samples collected during the investigation from the resident's property, reported the presence of mancozeb the active ingredient of Gavel 75DF.
