Draft Response:

Water sample PFAS results are currently being reviewed to ensure EPA quality assurance procedures are being met. However, issues related to the review are complex and the process will take some time. Upon our completion of the review, results will be shared with the public.

Wanted to get your thoughts before sharing further with SF or Andrea.

Subject: PFAS Testing

Mr. Adams, In the EPA'S March 26th advisory regarding PFAS contamination of waterways as a result of the ITC fire the agency stated testing was underway and sample results would be made public in "coming days".
Has the EPA received those results? If not, when do you hope to get them?
Thanks in advance for your response.
