As Lane Plating has very obviously not followed proper procedures, there is the probability that any person who worked at Lane plating may have brought home contamination. Is there any testing done at the homes of former Lane Plating workers

② You mention repeatedly "cleaning water"; What about laundrying clothes in the water or even baths?

③ You mention funding to start process, what about funding beyond initial to completion funding?

Why can't we ~~go out~~ test out far away in the direction of the stream to find the limits of contamination with the ~~first~~ next test so that we can get started on the cleanup sooner?

Did EPA know about any elevated risk of soil or water contamination affecting the community prior to 2015? If no, then EPA did not engage in any enforcement action against Lane Plating Works Inc. or express concern about soil contamination prior to 2015?

At the November 2018 community meeting, EPA was given a list of over 200 names, emails, and phone numbers to contact about Lane Plating. EPA does not seem to be using (or growing) this list to communicate with concerned residents. How can we get better communication with concerned residents, instead of relying on community groups to do this work for EPA?
