Okay, thanks for the update on Keystone.

I wasn't aware that someone moved in at the rental property near the location of RW-3. I'd think that they would have had considerable questions on living adjacent to a superfund site?

Regarding your at home working situation, the bright side is that your three children can amuse you with their questions and activities throughout the day.

I'm stuck home with three young kids, Larry. I'll politely reject the second part of your presumption.

Hope you're having a happy new year, too. About a year ago, EPA accepted the OGDs' request to switch to a quarterly progress report schedule. Kevin Svitana's submissions have usually been about 4-6 weeks after the close of the reporting period. The last quarter expired at the end of December, so I would expect the next progress report, which should be No. 130, to arrive at the end of January or before mid-February. I spoke to Kevin in mid-December and there wasn't anything significant report.

I did learn that a resident was now present in the rental property on the south side of the landfill (RW-03), and the OGD would be again incorporating this well into the monitoring program.

Thanks – Chris

Chris,
Presumably, you have enjoyed the holidays and are glad to be back to work.

I had a question on the Keystone Sanitation Landfill updates. Is the next one due later this month? The last I had was for July through September 2020.
