James-

Please clarify if you are suggesting 4/3/2018 or 4/13/2018? There are different dates throughout your email. Please revise and resend accordingly. In addition, please cite the following:

Petitions 4E8236 and 5F8427 (Decision Numbers 486865 & 486866 & 512078)
EPA Registration Numbers 80990-3, 80990-4 (Decision Numbers 486863 & 486864 & 512076 & 512073)
EPA Registration Number 71185-4 (Decision Numbers 486859 & 486861 &512067)

In regards to item 5 on your proposed agenda, we cannot discuss competitors actions. The due dates for new uses are public knowledge based on the report published for the new use schedule. I will look at the calendar to see if we can accommodate a meeting on short notice.

Thank you,

Subject: PRIA Renegotiation and EPA Meeting Request

Dear Hope,

On behalf of my client AgroSource, Inc., Exponent is responding to the recent email discussions on the upcoming PRIA due date of 10/5/2017. We understand that we must submit a new 850.2100 Passerine study to the Agency. The draft final report for this study has been reviewed by AgroSource and will be finalized and submitted to EPA on 10/3/17. We will submit the report via document processing and email you a copy of the submission. We agree to extend the PRIA date 6 months from the submission date. Based upon submission of the report to EPA tomorrow, AgroSource agrees to renegotiate the PRIA due date for the pending streptomycin actions to April 3, 2018. Please let us know if the Agency agrees with the proposed new PRIA due date.

We would like to schedule a meeting with EPA to evaluate the overall status of our pending submissions. We propose to schedule a meeting with EPA for the afternoon of October 16, 2017 as my client will be in Washington, DC for the antibiotic stakeholder meeting on October 17. We realize this is short notice but hope that EPA can accommodate our request. If this date does not work, we will provide some date options later in October or early in November.
