Because we have provided this information to you in an informal format, there is unfortunately no mechanism by which you could challenge a claim of confidentiality. At this point, you may submit a Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request to obtain the inspection report. Within the FOIA process, there will be a mechanism by which you can challenge the claim of confidentiality. Under that process, you will again be provided this same version of the report, with the confidential information redacted. You will then be afforded the opportunity to appeal the determination. Once you appeal the determination, EPA will contact the affected business in writing to ascertain the validity of the claims. Upon receipt of our inquiry, the affected business has 15 working days to substantiate the claim of confidentiality. If the claim is supported, the request is forwarded on automatic appeal to the Office of General Council for a final confidentiality determination. If the claim is waived, the information will be released to you.

For additional information regarding the FOIA process, please refer to http://www.epa.gov/foia/.
