I will see what can be done to improve the image quality. The drawings are over 30 years old and faded, but perhaps their resolution can be enhanced.

Kevin,

I was able to get the files from Natalie. However, we are finding the maps very difficult (and at certain points, impossible) to read because the writing is too light. Are the originals clearer or are the originals faded as well? If the originals are in better condition, could you scan them again with darker white/black contrast? If that won't work, can you try photocopies?
